United Way Stays Needy

by Jason Pasquale
Assistant News Editor

This is the time of year that one often looks to the needy and is so moved by the festivities that one actually donates, most frequently via a charity. Perhaps one of the best known is the United Way. Traditionally, Scarborough College students could feel content in the knowledge that they had been well represented via the annual food drives and other fund raising acctivities campus.

One such event is the SCSC plant sale, the profits from which are supposedly donated to the United Way. In the last two years, however, no donation has resulted from this event. Then student council president Catherine Brownson was responsible for the Fall 1990 Plant Sale. She organized the event with College Greens. In return for their assistance and 22% of the profits (which were to be donated to the United Way), Catherine agreed to use their plants. However, the way in which the 22% was to be calculated was not stipulated in advance.

Being a business, College Greens naturally wanted to use the method of calculation which would result in their giving up the least amount of profits possible. Similarly, last year's SCSC wanted to use an alternate method in order to increase the money they, and therefore the charity, received.

The disturbing element here is that the issue was never resolved. As per the minutes of this year's student Council, Cathie is quoted as saying, "proceeds were to be donated to the United Way, but the cheque was never sent because the amount to be sent could not be agreed upon." Indeed, funds were not sent nor does there appear to be any interest on behalf of either last year's or our current council to remedy the situation.

Cathie Brownson no longer attends Scarborough College, but last year's VP Finance, Stephen Pennycooke was available for comment. "The plant sale should have been the responsibility of a year rep., but Cathie wanted to do it all herself. So (the plant sale) didn't get done right." Stephen was unsure if Student Council ever received any money from College Greens.

This year's student council has no intent of looking into the matter as, "It doesn't involve us. It has to do with last year's Student Council".

Indeed, the following excerpts from the minutes of their first meeting indicate a somewhat less than benevolent attitude:

Cathie Brownson: "...usually res. students buy plants when they are moving in; people buy a lot because they know that the proceeds are going towards the United Way; donating to charity makes SCSC look good..."
Colin Campbell: "this is a good money making idea: people will buy plants even if proceeds do not go towards the United Way"
Michael Bayer: "why not hold the plant sale and donate some of the proceeds to the United Way."

Those statements were indicative of the general attitude at the meeting SCSC's first Board Meeting. Yet the signs used to advertise the plant sale still bore the United Way logo, and one of the frequently heard shouts to entice buyers was, "the money is for a good cause". What students did not recognize was that the "good cause" was intended to be SCSC and only partially the United Way.

Last year's arrangement with College Greens had called for 22% of the profits (profits amounted to about $400.00) to be donated; this year SCSC went alone in an attempt to cut out the middleman and thereby eliminate the middleman's cut of the profits.

When asked how much was eventually donated to the United Way this year the current Council explained that none was - there were no profits. In fact, the plant sale lost money this year.

SCSC: A Mid-Term Review

by Jason Pasquale
Assistant News Editor

While not the end of their term in office, the Underground is taking the opportunity of the end of a calendar year, and more importantly of a school term, to review the Student Coucil's performance and to give the students an idea of what to expect in the New Year.

It was difficult to get an interview initially as members of SCSC were often not present during their listed office hours. Underground staff were twice told that "Mr. Bayer does not keep regular office hours" but that he "dropped by, so (we should) keep trying to get a hold of him". However, they certainly showed what a close working group they were by eventually granting a group interview with Mike Bayer (President), Colin Campbell (VP Finance), Sofia Tsakos (VP Admin.) and Sue Czerlau (Social Commissioner).

To clear up any misunderstandings, Mike explained that he was always in his office during his stated hours unless he was busy with something he had scheduled. Indeed, all of the SCSC council (except Lance Flash - Cultural Commissioner) have posted office hours. Apparently, they were simply so busy performing their elected duties elsewhere I had simply missed them.

While neither the Academic

Committee on Homophobia
We are still accepting applications for the work-study position available. Anyone interested in applying is encouraged to contact either Piet or myself, or to leave a resume in our mail slot at the Graduate Students' Union building.
General meetings will take place on January 31, February 28, March 27, and April 10, 1991-92. Volunteers are needed for the Residence Working Group (contact Barry St. Denis), the Lesbian & Gay Awareness Week (contact Brian Jarvis at 978-3948), and Media Watch (the creation of this position is subject to approval by the Committee).
Our phone number is 978-0510 and I, Brian Jarvis, can be reached at 978-3948.

Employment Opportunities for 1992 Graduates
Are you graduating in 1992? Permanent employment is available to graduating students through the On-Campus recruitment programme which operates from September to March. The programme is an important first step towards finding a permanent job. On-Campus Recruitment brings representatives from business, government, and industry to interview students for permanent employment within their respective organizations. Register now with the Career Centre in room S-302.
Job listings are now available. Summer employment opportunities are also available to those students who wish to get some course-related experience and will be returning to university in September '92. For more information about Summer On-Campus Recruitment Programme visit the Career Centre, S-302.

Peer Counsellors
Peer Counsellors are available to assist students in the following areas:
Resumes and Interview Preparation
Study Skills
International Students
Arrange an appointment at the front desk in Counselling Services, S-302 or telephone 287-7550.

Special Services To Persons With A Disability
The Special Services Office caters to students (and others within the University community) who have a disability.

Students with a disability are strongly encouraged to contact Jan Mackenzie, Scarborough Campus Liason Offices at 287-7560 or visit room S-302A. She is available every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday during the academic year, and her assistant Lynda Carle will also be available Wednesdays.

Scarborough Distress Centre
Do you want to learn new skills and meet new challenges? Scarborough Distress Centre urgently needs volunteers age 21 and over to provide support and encouragement over the telephone. You can make a difference in someone's life. Please call the Scarborough Volunteer Centre for more information at 264-2308.

Server Training Courses
Server Training Programmes are being held through out November, December, and January. For more information on registration and course times, call 978-7296.

Improvs
Improvised comedy, or at least an attempt at it, is being performed every Wednesday at 12 noon in the Attic. Come on up, have a laugh on us, and if you dare - take part!

Women Burn with Silent Rage

by Reshmi Kutty
Underground Staff

On December 4, 1991 at 4:10, people gathered in the Meeting Place to face the "silent rage" while a subtle, mournful piece from the piano lingered in the air. Principal Paul Thompson opened the memorial service for the "Montreal Massacre".

Thompson wore a white ribbon in acknowledgement of the White Ribbon Campaign. The ribbons were intended for men to wear in opposition against violence committed by men against women. The campaign itself was started by the Toronto group, Metro Men Against Violence. Professor Deborah James, head of the Woman's Studies programme here at Scarborough Campus, read the names of the fourteen innocent women who were shot to death by Marc Lepine on December 6, 1989.

As the names were called out, different men and women went up to a table in the center of the semi-circle and laid down a long-stemmed red rose. The 14 flowers lay in a graceful heap as still as the actual women. Then, after a moment of silence, Professor Connie Guberman gave the closing speech. Guberman spoke of women and their bonds through prejudice and violence. Every violent act leaves women burning with a silent rage and from this fuel we should all work for change.

The House of Commons and the Senate have declared December 6 a National Day of Remembrance and Action on Violence Against Women, and we shall always remember the fourteen women:

SCSC: A Mid-Term Review (cont'd.)

nor the Cultural Commissioners were present the budgetary aspects of these commissions were commented upon by Campbell. Apparently, while the 'Project Aid Fund' area appears on the SCSC budget the funds (amounting to $2400) were added directly to the budgets to be distributed to clubs on campus. While this has the effect of increasing clubs' budgets across the board, it leaves a void of funding for any unexpected necessities. Clubs incurring unforeseen expenses are in trouble this year. SCSC, however, clearly understands the need to have allotted an amount for unexpected costs as each SCSC Commission requested and received $200 for 'Other' (amounting to $1000 total).

SCSC's proposed budget calls for the Services Commision to be the only one which makes a profit this year. Indeed a projected profit of $6,434 is expected from the same commision which had a deficit of $10,041 last year. When introducing last year's audited budget at the Annual General Meeting Campbell said, "in fact, you may wonder why we even bother to run the copy centre since we lose money." (Note that the preceding is only a paraphrase as the minutes of the November 19 meeting are not yet available to students). Campbell has raised an interesting question. In a later interview he did not respond to the question of whether bad management played a role in last year's Services deficit (Michael Bayer was Services Commissioner last year), rather, he pointed out that the Duplicating Centre lost money the last two years. The $11,929 deficit incurred by the Services Commission over the 1991 summer accounts for just over half of the $21,769 overall deficit incurred by SCSC in the time period between May 1 and September 1. It is noteworthy to point out that a little over one-quarter of the Services' Summer budget went towards the purchase of 2 Macs for the computer room. The Services' deficit, however, is even offset by the Part-Time commission giving them $400 for what amounted to $150 in photocopy supplies. Campbell explained that this is why the purchasing of photocopy supplies appears as a negative expense (effectively a profit) on the Services' portion of the SCSC summer budget.

The revenue required to compensate is expected from a sizeable increase in the use of the on campus photocopiers. "In the past our copiers have had a bad reputation", Campbell pointed out. He explained that the new copiers which can be seen around the school are a big improvement and that the switch to full automation via the addition of the copy card manager reduces the variable costs by half. What this basically means is that the salary SCSC once paid to have the Duplicating Room manned now pays for the rental of the automated equipment and the salary they now pay someone to periodically ensure the copiers are running. As a result, there should still be money left over. But many students still complain that the machines are frequently "all broken". And should the one 'Copy Card Manager' break-down SCSC is not only looking at repair costs but also at drastically lowered revenue - as people will be unable to 'charge up' their cards. Indeed, card sales were distressing enough at the beginning of the year that Services Commisioner Evan Anderson could be seen walking about campus giving away free cards. The quality of the copies is also a matter of some debate. Many students refuse to use the SCSC copiers as the ones in the library give, in their opinion, better quality copies and they do not mind paying the extra 3 cents a copy. The SCSC has an even higher quality photocopier in their office but it is only for use by their Commisioners; even students willing to pay for copies cannot use the machine. This is because it requires a four digit access code identifying each user and the SCSC secretary does not have a code; they have a second photocopier in the office for her. The library has the best location as this is where many students locate that which they want to copy. However, the SCSC machines have the advantage of being distributed throughout the school (potentially saving students a long walk). Some experts question whether it can be profitable to offer copies at seven cents each in an environment like Scarborough College. There is also some question as to whether the new models are of adequate design to handle the volume and general abuse one can expect in the University setting. When asked by a fellow Commisioner in an SCSC meeting if he had looked into using other companies Anderson responded, "no time." One is forced to ask what the computer room employee, which is on Anderson's budget, does to deserve a bonus of $325 when they earn $360 (that is over a 90% pre-tax earnings bonus).

The social commission is budgeted to have a final deficit of $13,763. One is forced, however, to correct the math errors on the SCSC budget. These result in an extra $850 in revenue for this commission alone.. Unfortunately, a large chunk of this revenue was expected to result from 3 Meeting Place concerts. While we have had one meeting place activity Social Commisioner Sue Czerlau does not want it to be considered a Meeting Place Concert for budgetary purposes, preferring it appear as an Attic Concert. While the amount allotted for a Meeting Place Concert was apparently not spent the revenues certainly fell short of what was expected as well. In their budget SCSC expects each of 3 Meeting Place concerts to have a full capacity of 450 people each paying $11.

Currently there are no big names booked for next semester, but Czerlau is working on it. Perhaps the most challenging obstacle in her path is time as she was voted into position in the fall by-elections and many of the noteworthy bands were already booked. Bayer explains, "I tried to book bands myself, I couldn't get anything cheap, I couldn't get anything that, y'know we coulda got Tom Cochrane or something like that $10,000 but is it worth it? One night, $10,000 to sell $600 worth of tickets or something?" Czerlau is indeed "doing the best she can with what she has to work with".

But is $10,000 that outrageous a sum? Let us put it in perspective. The following is from the Board of Directors Meeting on Tuesday October 29th:

"Evelyne Gharibian-Saki: Tom Cochrane question - What is the budget for an average (Meeting Place) concert?

Sue Czerlau: $7,500 for 3 Meeting Place concerts."

When reminded of the fact that the first of these concerts was scheduled for October 25th and cancelled, one realizes that the funds are present. The Social Commission now has $22,500 budgeted for Meeting Place Concerts, and only 2 such events left. In a prior issue we printed Michael Bayer's intentions: "We plan to put a lot of money into the social aspect of SCSC". Well, the money has been allotted, now we're waiting to have it well spent.

This is our student council - if you have any questions or concerns they want you to know "(their) door is always open", so drop by R-3042 from 8:00 am to 4:00pm Monday through Friday. A full listing of the Commisioner's new posted hours follow:

CIA's Charity Challenge

by Michelle Cloke
Underground Staff

Where is that Christmas Spirit you ask? Here at Scarborough that joy of giving was right in our own Meeting Place, Monday December 2. This was the day of the CIA's (Canadian Italian Association) first Charity Challenge for clubs, organizations and councils.

The challenge was an open invitation to all clubs and groups to use any ideas possible to raise funds for a worthy charity.

Unfortunately only three clubs managed to find the time to participate in the challenge: the Varsity Christian Fellowship, the International Students Scarborough and the Canadian Italian Association.

In the end just over two hundred dollars was raised and donated towards the Christmas Wish Fund and the Hospital for Sick Children.

On Monday December 2, the Meeting Place was alive with activity. The CIA, to promote their challenge, dressed as Santa and his elves. The group was gracious enough to donate candy canes and time to go over to the daycare centre. The kids enjoyed getting their orders into Santa early!

The lack of support and unity of Scarborough clubs is becoming more and more obvious. Perhaps next year students will feel more charity towards their fellow man. In any case thanks go out to all who participated in the challenge and especially to the CIA for their time and effort in organizing the worthwhile event.

Crime Increases at Scarb College

by Lonny Knox
Underground Staff

Since July of 1991, thefts and other incidents at Scarborough College have been increasing dramatically. November has been the biggest month thus far with a reported 45 incidents, 10 of which were thefts.

In an interview with Sgt. MacGhee of Campus Police, concern was expressed over the number of incidents which have been occuring in this increasingly violent area of Metro. In particular, several pieces of audio equipment from vehicles parked in the outer lots, primarily lots A and B, have been stolen along with other personal materials which were in the car at the time of the thefts. These thefts have generally taken place after midnight and as a result Sgt. MacGhee intends to increase security around the Campus. "We intend to be more vigilant after the hours of midnight in those two parking lots for the next considerable time and intend to stagger our hours so that we're not maintaining a pattern" said MacGhee regarding his strategy for reducing crime on campus.

Above all, Sgt. MacGhee emphasized that many of the incidents took place as a result of carelessness on the part of the victims. For instance, while sleeping in a study carrel in the S-wing, a female student had her purse stolen.

When SCSC was questioned regarding thefts of paper, equipment and money from their commission due to the loss of a master key and the ability to climb over the executive office walls, Mike Bayer commented that this was "nothing new, there are master keys floating around to professors' offices and everywhere in the school."

Of particular concern was an indecent act which occurred on the third level of the S-wing. A female student who was speaking on the telephone looked over to see a male masturbating. After she challenged the male, he ran off and the female promptly reported the incident to campus police. Unfortunately, the man has not yet been caught but Sgt. MacGhee would like to see him apprehended. The male is described as black, 5'11'', mid-twenties, medium build, with shaved hair on each side, higher in the top. He was wearing a plaid-coloured jacket, red/yellow/black, a black turtleneck sweater and khaki pants. If you think you know this individual, please contact Campus Police at 287-7398.

Dear Underground,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for printing the front page article on SAC (re: Tuesday, November 26 issue).

There is only one correction, but a very important one, which I feel ought to be made. With regards to the cost of SAC's membership with the Ontario Federation of Students and the Canadian Federation of Students, the article states that the cost would involve an additional $3.00 to join both organizations. I want to make it clear to students that membership in OFS costs an additional $3.00 per student, per year on top of their current SAC fees and that membership in CFS costs a further $4.00 per student, per year.

I hope this clears up any misunderstanding, especially on the part of the students who might have to make a crucial decision if the issue appears in a future referendum.

Finally, on a more general note, any students on this campus interested in getting involved with SAC and/or wish to obtain further information, please constact the SAC Info desk (3rd floor R-wing, call 287-7615) or the central office at 978-4911.

Sincerely,
Victor Jose,
Chairman
SAC-Scarborough

Dear Editor,

I read that you wanted a reply, so here it is: it's about time someone fixed up the paper! The new look of the Underground is great. The only improvement I would recommend is to get an autofocus camera! Out of all the pictures in the issue (Vol.11 Num.12 Dec. 3), only the cover and the BACCHUS pictures were in focus. But, all in all, the December 3 issue was the best issue I've seen in a while!!!

Le Fond de la Corbeille

Once again, we draw near to this season that we call Christmas. Reflecting upon the idea surrounding Christmas, one might wonder if the Christmas season is a purely Christian religious celebration or if it expands to encompass another meaning.

Christmas, the principal reason for its being, started with the following of a star in the sky by three Magi, paying homage to a newborn child who was said to bring peace to the world.

In the Torah it was written that the Messiah would come. He would be born in Bethlehem, of the lineage of King David, of a virgin mother, and a star would indicate his birthplace.

Christians, in the years afterwards, would honour his birth in repeating what the Magi had done by exchanging gifts.

To the countries where Christianity had spread to, this time of the birth of their Saviour was to become a holiday season.

Back to the original question: does this season encompass another meaning other than that of its religious one?

This season does include the Jewish festival of Hanukkah, but no other religious festival. So, if there is another meaning to this season, it cannot be found by investigating another religion.

Look at what happens around Christmas. The entire family comes together, regardless of faith or lack of. Letters, cards and phone calls of greetings are sent to those near and distant.

Does this time not possess the greatest pull of the year to draw loved ones together?

Merry Christmas

Government may can OSAP

by Karen Zypchyn
The Silhouette

Rumours are flying at Queen's Park that the NDP is planning to scrap OSAP grants.

Liberal Colleges and Universities critic Hans Daigeler, M.P.P. for Nepean, claimed in a press release that he has been informed by government sources that NDP Treasurer Floyd Laughren proposed to turn OSAP into a loans-only programme.

Daigeler claimed that Laughren made this proposal in front of the NDP cabinet's committee on social policy.

On November 7, Daigeler questioned Colleges and Universities Minister Richard Allen on the issue in the Provincial Legislature.

"[Allen] refused to deny that the NDP is planning to scrap OSAP grants. [Allen] said, 'we are looking at all options,'" said Daigeler in a telephone interview.

Daigeler said he could not indicate his government sources, but that their reliability had been communicated to him.

"I was shocked [at the Minister's reaction]. The NDP campaigned on a pro-student platform making access [to education] easier," Daigeler added.

Preliminary figures provided by the government reveal that 62,579 students received grants totalling $176.4 million in the 1990-91 fiscal year.

Daigeler said that grants are aimed at students who cannot afford to finance their education. A loans-only programme would increase the loan debt burden on students and decrease students' desire to go to university.

"The NDP was concerned that finance was not a hindrance [to education]," Daigeler stressed.

But Daigeler's criticism did not stop at broken promises.

"The Treasurer's plan is a betrayal of the consultation committee on OSAP reform created by the NDP," said Daigeler in a press release.

Daigeler said that a loans-only programme was not proposed by the OSAP committee.

In the Legislature, he criticized Allen's consultation policy, implying that Allen "[lets] the people [on the committee] discuss cosmetic changes to OSAP, but [keeps] them in the dark on his real plans to dismantle the OSAP programme."

"The Ministry is not being straightforward. If the economic situation is so drastic that [the government] must [cut grants], then [it should] say so," said Daigeler.

The student financial assistance review committee was struck a year ago to make suggestions on the provision of financial accessibility to postsecondary education, while making optimum use of provincial resources.

The committee consisted of many student, university and trade school councils. It produced its report in August 1991.

Among its recommendations was a "loans first" programme, whereby OSAP recipients would get loans before a grant. This is a reversal of the current policy which is a "grant first" programme: when a student applies for OSAP, s/he is assessed first for a grant, then for a Canada Student Loan, and lastly for a provincial loan.

The committee proposed the change so that total grant allocation could be redistributed with those having the highest assessed need receiving larger grants than those with less assessed need. Ultimately, the goal is to spread the debtload more evenly among OSAP recipients.

Daigeler said OSAP reform is tabled in the budget which will be introduced in March/April 1992.

Sandy Darling, vice-president administration at McMaster, said he had heared rumours about grant cuts.

He said that nothing can really be known until the government releases details. OSAP reform has been a tabled issue in the past, said Darling.

He said he agreed that there is a need to improve the OSAP programme.

John Edwards, director of McMaster Student Financial Aid and Scholarships, echoed Darling's comments.

"It's about time that something is being done about OSAP," he said.

"It doesn't suprise me that Ontario is looking at the "grants first" process. It does surprise me if Mr. Daigeler is correct," he added.

Edwards explained that Ontario is the only province that has a "grants first" policy.

But he said a loans-only programme would not aid making the university more accessible.

But Edwards also said Allen could not respond to Daigeler's claim.

If Allen had said either yes or no to the issue of grant cutbacks, he would have undermined the OSAP review committee, said Daigeler.

Dylan Jones, president of the McMaster Students Union, agreed that OSAP reform was greatly needed, but that it now appeared changes to OSAP will mean money cutbacks.

"The Minister [of Colleges and Universities] doesn't want to say anything. The government is in tough times - it doesn't want to make any promises," said Jones.

"The last thing [it] should do is stab the back of education," added Jones, who believes that education is the investment of the future.

When asked about his response to potential grant cutbacks by the NDP, first year physical education student Yufang Mao said, "it cuts off a lot of potential students that might come from a lower-class family with potential for university."

Chris Mowery, a first year social science student, has been waiting for her grant since June when she applied for it.

"It's terrible. The loans do help, but they have to be paid back. A lot of people wouldn't be able to come [to university]. Cuts would make a lot of people think twice."

Have a Chemical Christmas

Consumers buying Christmas trees might also be buying into landfills, synthetic chemicals and land that is used only to meet this holiday demand.

According to Mark Janowitz at the Clean Nova Scotia Foundation, trees in landfills don't decompose properly because air can't get at them.

"The trees just sit there creating methane and acidic fluids which leach out into the water table."

Janowitz says that the foundation doesn't propose that society does away with the Christmas tree tradition. But he says they have, along with the city, started a programme whereby the trees are collected for chipping rather than wasted. He says that last year, 20,000 were collected in Halifax.

Janowitz says that his group has not come out against the use of pesticides and herbicides in tree production, in addition to the trees' natural pesticides.

Lance Makmillen, a carpenter who lives near Caledonia, is affected by Haligonians buying synthetic chemical-laden trees. "At one point they were spraying within 30 feet of the road where our kids walk to school every day."

Makmillen says that the chemical they were using was diazinon which he claims was never tested for carcinogens but can cause foetus deformities and liver damage.

Peter Ronkey, Christmas tree specialist with the Department of Natural Resouces, agrees that chemicals such as these are not healthy, but has no problem with them "...as long as you are following the directions." He adds that the sprayed trees are not a threat to consumers because "...there would be no residue on the trees when they're picked off the lot."

Jim Drechier, an organic farmer from Lunenburg county, believes that Christmas tree farming is wasteful.

"The use of land whereby natural forest growth or agriculture is prevented is shameful, especially in our time," he said.

Ronkey says that just under 10% of Nova Scotia Christmas trees are grown on old agricultural land. He doesn't think it's a waste of land because "...it's a cottage industry which employs 400-600 permanently and 2500-3000 seasonally."

CUP facing $650,000 lawsuit

Canadian University Press

The publisher of a glossy magazine distributed on Canadian campuses is threatening to sue a student newspaper cooperative for $650,000 in damages.

Canadian University Press and the organization's president, John Montesano, are being threatened with legal action in the wake of a campaign to remove Looking Up from college and university campuses.

Looking Up is a free magazine aimed at students, produced by Glenmont Publications, a private Montreal company. Looking Up bills itself as "Canada's campus voice," although the people who run the magazine are not students.

"I've never been sued for so much money before," said Montesano. "Obviously they're trying to scare us."

A letter to CUP from Glenmont's lawyer alleges that CUP has "caused irreparable damage to the reputation" of the magazine. It also suggests that CUP illegally incited the distributors of the magazine to break their contracts with Looking Up.

Glenmont is demanding $650,000 in damages, an apology and a letter of reference from CUP which states that Looking Up is "a magazine of high integrity and quality and worthy of advertising support." Montesano said CUP will not back down.

"If people have contracts with Glenmont, then we are asking them not to break them. But we are trying to make sure that those contracts are not renewed," he said.

Student papers across the country are concerned that Looking Up and similar commercial magazines are threatening their survival by luring away advertisers. CUP members say campuses should be reserved for non-profit-driven companies.

A Glenmont representative has told at least one student councillor that CUP was having a change of heart.

Jerry Stolling, of the University of Alberta's student council, said Glenmont publisher Monte Perlman told him CUP had dropped its campaign against Looking Up.

Perlman also told him a letter announcing the co-operative's change in policy was forthcoming, Stolling said.

But Montesano said that nothing could be further from the truth.

"We are organising a general campaign for 1992, in support of student papers getting non-student papers off campuses." Perlman declined to comment on the lawsuit, but said he hoped a big legal battle with CUP could be avoided.

Christmas Wishes...

To HABIBTI.

Merry X-MAS and a happy New Year.

Buzz.

Dearest Vanessa,
This is the best I could come up with. Merry X-mas and Happy New Year.

Lots of Luv,
Buzz,

John and Yoko: Gee... Your first Christmas together. How sweet. Be sure to celebrate with breakfast in bed... and lunch... and dinner...
Merry Chrismas!! -Kate

Michelle dear,
We're so sorry we can't spend the holidays with you but surely you and your brother will get by. Also dear we wanted to let you kno that you are illegitimate.
Merry Christmas.
Love Mom and Dad.

Anne, Louie, Monica, Ed and the rest of you Bio. people,

Thanks for the support with the play. (The scripts you recieved were your gifts). I fully expect you all at our next dance - ED you have no excuse next time.

Best Holiday Wishes,
Jason

The Underground,

Cheryl and Aniel (sorry about the spellings), welcome aboard, I'd show you around but I'm just getting my bearings myself. Lonny, look out or I won't be 'assistant' for long. Michelle, well I'll still take pictures for you. Larry, thanks for the patience- you'll be the first on my 'QUEST' list. Interim Production Manager- what can be said but our evenings alone together meant a lot to me. Steve, I could use your business knowledge; how can you be anyones father when you leave a wet behind the ears reporter struggling like that. Kate, wise up- you can do better. Captain Jason lay anchor for a while, we need you here at Scarborough. Marlene, Mark, it was nice to know you while it lasted. Vanessa we'll talk- I have a few ideas for your section. Conan, sorry you quit right after I joined; gee, those aren't related, are they? Have a happy holiday season one and all,
Jason Pasquale.

TO THE B.C. BEST. B.C. SUCKS.
Merry X-Mas.

Buzz.

Dear Sweetheart,

Just a short and simple message to let you know that I am looking forward to the Christmas holiday and spending another happy and exciting year with the most special guy in my life.

Dear U.S.
Wowie, what a semester! What are the three 'F' disasters; Flood, famine, and fire? Well, we've been flooded with problems, we're starving for stories, and we all know of the fire! Here's to a triumphant New Year...cuz..for every action there's an equal and opposite reaction.
Happy Christmas
From the Desk of E.E.

To Andrea B.
You are the prettiest girl in the planning class. I want to ask you for a date. Will you go out with me? Merry Christmas.
With love
Your secret admirer.

Noel,
You used to tell me, quite some time ago
As we joked and talked at night,
I'm a REAL man don't you know.
I'd smile and take it rather light,
But lately I'm thinking it's true.
Not many would daare to undertake,
Some of the crazzy things you'll do.
I'm not sure that you know,
I appreciate all you've done for me,
Every bit of kindness you show.
I'm not sure what this will mean to you,
But, with all that this season sends,
I wanted to tell you straight from the heart,
I'm glad that we're good friends.
Happy Birthday and
Merry Xmas
From a Real Woman
XOXO

KARINA D.
Thanks for you-know-what! I hope that your special Christmas wish comes true, you certainly derserve it!
May you Christmas be Merry,
May your Holidays be Happy,
and May your side-view mirror be safe!

J.K.,

Here's to pseudo- bargain (?) pizza, V+ tea, Alphabit breakfasts and Tags!

(Sorry , no quote!)Enjoy & Merry Christmas!

To my housemates and my best white female friend, Thank you for teaching me the ways of the world. Let's see if I've got it right.

1) men are scum.
2) Male hearts were meant to be broken.
3) Male egos were meant to be crushed.
4) Male intelligence cannot be insulted since there is no such thing.

Playing the game should be easy now that I know the rules.

Merry X-mas from the green banana.

To the people that I stay up late with;

I can't think anymore! My brain's dead! Cherry Cheesecake! Anyone who watches the entire Anne of Green Gables on a Monday morning is nuts or a friend of mine (not necessarily mutually exclusive). Honestly, we can't continue like this. We will crack. Merry Holidays.

The Blonde

Merry Christmas and Good Luck in the New Year to the Blazing "Blades".

Mary: Won't that drive him crazy? Mary Christmas everyone! Mary Christmas! Yeah, well, rice is only good for throwing at weddings and I'll bet even that's over-rated. I hope you win the lottery and if not that you at least have an amazing Christmas and a Killer New Year. (Mary Logic!)

To my twin,

Hope your overseas Christmas is merry and that Santa is good to you even though you might not have been good all year! From your evil twin!

To my favorite Bartender,

Your Intricazies will be missed during the holidays - Merry Christmas.

To the Blades Babes - Keep those skates sharp through the holidays,

Merry X-mas from "Slapshot"

To Cash - Ahhh! Who's going to make my stir-fry while you're gone for a whole month!!! Have a Merry Christmas!

To The Friends of K-10

Hey! What's Santa Doing?

Have a very Merry Christmas guys,

We know he is!

To Caesar,

Friends for life eh? Save it for the ice next season,

Fellow Rat,
Brutus.

Professor Cupchik;

Happy Hanakah! Next year you won't have to put up with "The Housemates" at all. Aren't you going to miss us terribly!?

The Blonde Housemate

Merry Christmas NewsEditor Man,

U R 2 CUL

And I'm silly but LOVE does that to you.

Tracy and Melita;

I DID'nt get you guys anything!? Well, I needed a good dose of Christmas guilt...you guys are going to get something from Montreal for sure....

J.J.

To the Sex Maniacs,

R, thanks for the advice, my knees no longer hurt. M, next time I going looking for those cigarettes. Even just one a long as it's king size. To the 'Slow' person, with age you'll get faster. J, so that what those pecks really are!
Happy Holidays one and all,

Miche,

P.S.: It was in my hands for a reason really.

To all the UG'ers

It's been a bizarre first year at the U of T, thanks for making it even more so. Steve, where is this WRS you keep talking about? And why don't you make some Polaroids. Vanessa, only you would help someone you barely even know try to get home for Christmas...thanks. Adrian, now I know how to use the computers...and several Star Trek movie plots. Randy, YOU SPEAK? Conan, you left just when things were getting interesting. Miche, manic...what else can be said besides...IT'S ALL A CONSPIRACY! Reshmi, don't lose that...um...well...interesting sense of humor (hey it makes sense to me). Lonny, don't worry it was a one time thing really....REALLY.

Hello to all the new folk, and farewell to all those who I knew in the past....

MERRY CHRISTMAS,
The Long Hair Hippy Bastard.
..,ESQ.

From one best friend to the other:

It's certainly been a crazy year. I guess we've both had our doubts at times, and a lot of confusion and hurt got mixed in with all the good, wonderful and happy ones. But you knwo I love you, and no matter what you decide I will always be your friend. I've made my Christmas wish, but most of all I want you to be happy.
Love, Teddy-Bear-Hair.

To my favorite Don.
Someone of your position should not knowingly allow someone with a criminal record to remain in office!
Have a very merry Christmas!

Merry Christmas Nazzy and M.B. and Maryann,

Happy New Year!
Party time come Feb 20th 1992!

RK

Hello my name is

Merry Christmas to all my fellow members.
May the New Year bring us something more productive to do.

Merry Christmas to my evil twin. (you know who you are)
Here's hoping Santa had his eyes closed!

Christmas Holiday Report,

Mom and Dad are abandoning me. My Happy Hugging Hippy brother is goin' home to the farm. Lucas and his babe are skipping town. Even junior and his jeans are going east. Your all leaving me! How cruel! (Just kidding) You know I love you all. Merry Chistmas and well see ya in the New Year.

Michelle

Andi,

Merry Christmas and all that stuff. When is the last time we went Shopping? (Remember those crab legs?)
Let's do lunch.

The Mighty Sting of the Killer Bees

by Jeff O'Brien

This week's winners of team spirit are the Killer B's. For a change we felt there was only one person who could do the B's justice in a write-up there own coach.

Although Scarborough College has had a lot of champions in Ice Hockey over the years, no team has ever been as dedicated to sacrificing personal goals in favour of team glory as the "Killer B's" were this season.

With only seven veterans returning, the team was faced with integrating many new rookies into a club with character. The team started the season with a defence core that was patched together on the final day of pre-season, three forward lines as different in character as Molson Dry, Carlsberg Light and Amsterdam's Pale Ale, and a coach which made Mike Keenan seem like a pussycat.

Focusing on a tight defensive style, the team won by taking advantage of other teams' mistakes and keeping their own to a minimum. The real characteristics of sacrifice and unity were embedded within everyone after rookie night and the teams play improved continuously throughout the season. Not one player stood head and shoulders above the others, which is represented by the fact that stars of the game were interchangeable each week. When one leader was having an off game, another would play at the peak of his ability to make up for it. This is what this team was about and enabled them to win consistently. With their win over Dentistry in the finals, 3-2, this team of misfits showed the rest of the league what heart, balls, a lot of screaming, and determination can do for you when everyone else has their doubts about you.

Thanks go out to Randy Thomas, Mike, Petra and the rest of the fans who supported us throughout the year. Also thanks to Lisa-Lynne, the real motivation for attending all those damn 7:00 am practices on Tuesdays! Thanks for all the hard work - you deserve to be champions!

Way to go B's on a great season and on being this week's team spirit winners!

The killers include:
Front row: Dave "Get This Fking Guy Out Of My Way" Huether, Chris "Missed The Net Again" Burden
Middle row: Steve "Norman Bates" Livingston, Greg "Do It All" Mulroney, Frank "Know It All" Salmonds, Ted "How 'Bout A Shave" Nedelkopoulos

Blades in Control

by Mark J. Proulx

Last Tuesday at Varsity Arena, our Women's Ice Hockey team took on Trinity College in the final game before Christmas. Trinity only had two subs on the bench, and their lack of depth proved to be their Achilles heel as our Blades handled them easily. The scoring did start until late in the first period on a nice goal by Danielle Canata. Canata pounced on a rebound after Kim Bevan ripped a shot off the bewildered Trinity goalie. Canata would add a second before the period ended on a similar play, to give the Blades a 2-0 lead after 1 period of play. During the intermission I applauded the efforts of the defence and offence and mentioned to Richards (goalie) to be careful and not fall asleep. The Blades came out flying in the second, with the number two line of Betty "Berube" Ferreira, Kathy "Kruise Missile" Kolic and Cynthia "Lurch" Bishop, applying good pressure and heavy forechecking.

The Blades went up 3-0 on a goal by Bevan. Canata dropped a pass to Kim who went high and bulged the twine for the tally. Two more quick goals by Kim "The Great One" Bevan and the Blades were cruising with a 5-0 lead. Petra Fischer found her name added to the game sheet by setting up one of Bevan's goals. Canata added the other 2 assists. The number one line accounted for all the points this morning to give the Blades a 3-1 record heading into the Christmas Break.

The defence corps was absolutely perfect as the kept opposition to the outside, defended the blueline and controlled rebounds. The blueliners of Lisa Tkachuk, Shannon Meek, Tricia Duncan, Clarissa Kirtsen and Wendy Lodwick were stellar in front of the net, at the blueline and in holding the puck in the opposition's end.

The 5-0 victory was also special as Blades goalkeeper Victoria (Tory! Tory! Tory!) Richards earned her first shutout. After the end of regulation time I jumped onto the ice and presented her with the puck, a special memento for a special game.

Thanks to Chuck, Chris,for coming out all those eye-rubbing, cold car-driving coffee-laden mornings and to Mr and Mrs Ferreira who are probably the best sport-supporting parents I've ever known. Oh, and thanks to Dave Cranor for finally showing up to a game (he's the assistant coach!)

Well done ladies, have a great Xmas or Hanukkah or Noel or whatever and we'll see you next semester. "I want another one, just like the other one, I ...want...more!"

Athlete of the Week

The final "Athlete of the Week" for this term is Chris Tieber. Chris, who is in his 4th year studying geography, represents Scarborough College in interfac alpine skiing and hockey. It was Chris' Matt Dunnigan-style heroics in the B level hockey playoffs that won him this week's honour.

In the quarter-finals against Team Pharmacy, Chris sprained his ankle in the second period and had to rest for ten minutes to ease the pain. However, when the game went into overtime Chris was called upon to keep the team's season alive. Ever the team player, he sucked up the pain and not only skated in the extra period but actually scored the winning goal to propel the Killer B's into the semi's.

The fact that Chris even played in the overtime was amazing since, unfortunately, his ankle was still was too sore to skate on by game time in the semi-finals against Skule. Chris had to do his best Wendel Clark imitation and sit in the stands, but unlike Wendel, he watched his team win as the Killer B's defeated the Engineers 4-1 to make it to the best-of-three finals.

Chris was able to play in all three games in the final series against Dentistry which, as previously reported by Chris Burden, was forced to a deciding game on another Killer B overtime goal, this one by Frank Salmonds.

Chris Tieber put his own stamp on the final game by scoring the game (and season) winning goal, in the 3-2 Scarborough victory.

Congratulations to the Killer B's for bringing another championship back to Scarborough, and to Chris Tieber on being chosen "Athlete of the Week". Chris will receive one pound of free chicken wings from GB Catering, and one free BEvERage from the Attic.

Blades of Steel

by The 7 Guys

Last Friday while the remainder of the student body slept off the previous night of drinking and debauchery, there was an exhibition game going on between the 7 Guys and the Scarborough Women's Hockey team, the Blades. Coach Proulx thought the game would be a nice way to end before the Christmas break and help the five teams at Scarborough get to know one another and gel.

The 7 Guys consisted of Mark Proulx (Coach of the Blades and former goalie for the Central Red Army team in the USSR), Tom Billinger (5-time Norris Trophy winner and successful bar owner), Brian Fraser (former running back for the LA Rams and currently assistant barkeep to Mr. Billinger), Chris Hollingsworth (former Athletics Director at UCLA, specialised in cheerleading and currently Regional Manager for Canada Trust), Dan Kovalis (aka Burt Ward, famous for his role as Robin, the Boy Wonder sidekick to superhero Batman), Randy Thomas (former Sherbrooke Canadien and AHL journeyman who now makes his fortune in hockey cards and pools) and Charles Ferreira (World Cup winner team member), who currently works in the health service profession.

The first half saw the men skate and puckhandle all around the women, and the game looked like it was a mismatch. Hollingsworth was in the nets for the women and Victoria Richards was in net for the 7 Guys as safety was a concern for Coach Proulx. Several quick goals by Proulx had Hollingsworth on his heels and the women slightly disorganized. But as the game wore on, it seemed apparent the women were fighting back and giving the guys a hell of a time. As Proulx found out, the women are no strangers to the game of contact. Bevan bumped Proulx who soon found himself kissing the blueline staring at Bevan as she skated down the ice with the puck. Charles Ferreira also found out the hard way that the women can use their sticks just as effectively. Petra Fischer, in an attempt to determine if Ferreira was wearing a cup, speared him in the you-know-whats and brought the mighty Chuck to his knees.

After a switch in goaltending, Hollingsworth now in net for the men, the women were having a field day. Bevan, Canata, Taylor, Phillips and Duncan slipped and lid around the defence of the 7 Guys and found holes all through Hollingsworth's equipment.

The game lasted for about 2 hours, and at the end, both parties were tired. Although fatigued, everyone found time to stop by Denny's for a nice post-game breakfast and chat. It was a nice end to a great morning. There will be more games like this in the future, but with better advertising. The 7 Guys hope to gain back a loss of face they suffered. Good work to all, and good luck to all Scarborough teams next semester!

Xmas Singalong

by Larry Koch

The Meeting Place was filled with the harmonious sounds of Yuletide music-making last Sunday, December 8, as the Scarborough College Brass Band, the Scarborough College Chorus and the Sine Nomine Singers provided a mixture of traditional and less well-known Christmas pieces for the enjoyment of the appreciative (not to mention sizeable) audience. The Band, the Chorus and the Singers took turns presenting their selections and also performed together on a number of songs. Accompaniment was also provided by keyboardist Carol Birtch on piano and a synthesiser which gave a perfect reproduction of the sound of a church organ, as well as those in the audience who, under the encouragement of choir director Bill Bowen, lent their voices to the sounds of the Chorus and the Sine Nomine Singers, the latter being essentially a scaled-down version of the former. Congratulations to all performers for their contributions to this Sunday Serenade, and to all attending for their participation in what was a supremely enjoyable concert.

Who/What is God?

by Todd Matheson

In his book Imajica, Clive Barker asks a curious question: "What if man made God in his image?" This uneasy inference ignites a multitude of hypotheses in one's mind about the origin and purpose of religion.

Perhaps the concept of God originated, as Clive Barker suggests, from within man himself. Man seems to have an innate need to explain the unexplainable, and creating gods to explain natural phenomena in certain primitive cultures illustrates this need. Further support for this cause-and-effect relationship would be the inversely proportionate relationship between religion and science within the context of cultural beliefs. One can observe the general tendency, reflecting upon history, that as science progresses in its quest to unlock the secrets of the universe, religious beliefs of the general population diminish. In reaction to this effect, religion has experienced a metamorphosis in various ways to either accommodate or combat this phenomenon. Witness how one branch of religion has tried to accommodate this trend by competing with science and its powerful following by using a scientific approach - by essentially fighting fire with fire. I am referring to the Church of Scientology which accommodates the public's faith in science by integrating a quasi-scientific method with religion. This is not a criticising observation but rather a neutral one used to support my thesis that religion exists as a function to support human needs, and that religion will change in order to accommodate the changing needs of society. Witness also the recent change of the Catholic church from an exclusively Latin mass to an English one. I believe that today, more than ever, the Christian church is under to various stresses to please various groups. There exists presently a motion to allow homosexual ministers to practice within the church. Feminists object to the chauvinistic properties of the church, and more specifically, within the Bible text. Demands from various interest groups may further stratify and weaken the church if they are conceded to. When religion is stratified, it loses strength as a result of loss of faith by its followers. How can one have faith in religion as a whole if so many churches preach or claim different truths? One only need look backwards in time to Victorian society in order to see how the stratification of the church had weakened public faith in general.

Religion succeeds and persists, however, because it continues to fill basic or fundamental needs. Nietzsche refers to this fundamental need as the greatest need of all, "and that which relieves the greatest need, the rare, the hardest of all - it glorifies as holy" (Zarathustra). From a religious perspective, I gather, this need is a need to know why we exist and what lies ahead of us in the afterlife. Creation and stories from the Bible enlighten us of the mysteries concerning life and death. From a scientific perspective, the need may be fulfilled by unlocking the secrets of the universe, by explaining phenomena through an empirical approach. Both approaches are looking at the same mountain peak, just from different angles.

Massive Attack
Circa Records

If you like rap, soul, reggae and ambient house, but still like the musical styles of the early 70's soul music, then you'll love this new album from British artists Massive Attack.

Blue Lines is an interesting mix of vocals, percussion, sampled sounds and portions of other peoples music (surprisingly, with their direct permission) and all sorts of neat sound effects. Samples even include James Brown, the "HYAAA!"-man himself!!

Songs range from a very entertaining upbeat fusion of rap, soul and R&B with songs like "Safe From Harm" all the way to a soothing vocal mixes which draw upon sources such as reggae and ambient house derived styles, such as "One Love", a lucid, sultry piece about love and commitment.

Vocals are quite smooth and range from deep male vocals to a most beautifully crafted female voice, that of Shara Nelson.

So, if you've got a couch which is near a great speaker system, Blue Lines by Massive Attack is a sure hit with people who enjoy an interesting twist of musical combinations.

This band, a pioneer of a new "category" of music called "Acid Jazz", will make you want to dance on your couch, on the dance floor, or just plain want to groove. !!!COOL TUNES!!!

U2
Achtung Baby
Island

Whatever happened to songs like: "One man come in the name of love / one man come and go / one man come he to justify / one man to overthrow / one man caught on a barbed wire fence / one man he resist / one man washed up on an empty beach / one man betrayed with a kiss... / early morning, April four / shot rings out in the Memphis sky / free at last / they took your life / they could not take your pride... / in the name of love / what more in the name of love?"("Pride (In The Name Of Love)") .

Agreed, it is not a deep lyric that renders profound insight into humankind - it probably won't even achieve immortality. No, they are just words that, coupled with a good musical score, are powerful and mean something to those concerned. They represent something more than the following ever could: "You're an accident / waiting to happen / you're Eno. It also boasts recording sessions in Berlin, Dublin and Morocco. A couple of fan mail addresses appear and despite the urges to join Greenpeace and Amnesty International, this does not resemble regular U2 releases. Have U2 given up?

For some, their relaxed lyrics and lack of bleeding-heart cries are welcome changes from the band that "didn't mean to bug us". Now listeners can focus on the band's sound and not on their message. Only problem is, it was their stories that gave them (and a piece of glass / left there on the beach / well, you tell me things / I know you're not supposed to / then you leave me / just out of reach / hey hey sha la la / hey hey sha la la la" ("(Who's Gonna Run Your) Wild Horses"). If it were not for a couple of tracks and THE EDGE of this band's guitarist, YOU TOO may have let this one FLY by your ears.

A careful examination of the album cover reveals some impressive contributors: David Bowie, Daniel Lanois and Brian global problems) recognition.

Performances are commendable, especially on "The Fly" and "Mysterious Ways". They're catchy tunes that propel the talents of Bono, the Edge, Adam and Larry. However, is it "so cruel" to be disappointed in Achtung Baby? For diehard U2 fans yearning for the long-awaited next album, they "still haven't found what they're looking for". What happened, guys? Were those rumours of a break-up true, and is this album evidence of another Milli Vanilli scandal? Bono, babe, your lyrics are lacking. Maybe sources of inspiration are sparse as Germany reunites, U.S. hostages are released and nuclear arms are reduced. Why not head over to Canada - seems there's a lot of unrest in the Great White North.

All in all, Achtung Baby is not quite "better than the real thing". Can't wait for the tour in '92. Don't let us down.

The Attic's Dark Side

by Jason Pasquale
Assistant News Editor

The Attic, Scarborough College's newly re-decorated pub, has been the focus of a number of issues lately. The underlying cause of all the surface issues is that of control.

There have been two serious alcohol-related incidents occurring here at Scarborough: a brawl in the Pub on November 2 and more recently, arrests at SCSC's Video Dance November 29. In both instances there was more than one event occurring on campus at the time.

The November 2 Pub brawl was the same evening as the Halloween party in the Residence Centre, which resulted in a pub staff of eight being split. The reason Pub staff was so minimal: "Tom had double booked because he had forgotten" that he had booked the first party. This was explained to the Underground by SCSC, whose role in the Pub will later be expounded on. It should be noted that Pub Manager Tom Billinger was not interviewed for this article.

The SCSC Video Dance occurred on the same night as the Canadian Italian Association's Dance, Interlude I: a night of one acts in the drama studio, the African Caribbean Students Association's rehearsal and the road trip to Lulu's organized by the Student Village Council. SCSC explains that they were unaware of anything going on that night aside from their own function. They apparently went to Tom in advance and he told them that there was nothing booked that evening. The C.I.A. had booked the Pub for the indicated night several weeks prior to when SCSC claims they talked to Tom. SCSC points out that apparently the road trip to Lulu's was originally scheduled for the 22nd and was later pushed back a week after SCSC had made arrangements for the Video Dance on the 29th.

ACSA had booked the meeting place for a rehearsal of the show they put on the following night. Apparently SCSC was not informed of this event either. Numerous sources have indicated that ACSA received addditional support and funding from SCSC in the amount of $200. In exchange they willingly forfeited their claim to the Meeting Place which the SCSC required for their event.

Similarly, SCSC President Michael Bayer was overheard offering the C.I.A. an extra $200 in their budget for next term if they would cancel their dance and encourage their members to attend the Video Dance. The C.I.A. dance did go on.

The number of events on a single night was seen as unfortunate by SCSC but they felt obliged to put on their dance as they "had clearly tried" to avoid the event.

The issue is that poor communication has resulted from the formation of the Pub Advisory Board. The Pub was originally owned by SCSC but this changed two years ago. To govern Pub regulations, the Pub Advisory Board was created, composed of three students and three faculty members. By convention, Bayer explained, the student positions are occupied by the SCSC President and the two Vice-Presidents. This year that means Michael Bayer, Sofia Tsakos and Colin Campbell.

Yet we have a number of instances in which SCSC has passed motions in their meetings which (apparently) directly affect Pub policy. On August 16, the SCSC President's report threatened to "withdraw SCSC support (from the Pub) if prices don't decrease". This was in response to a suggested across-the-board price increase to help pay for the renovations. Whether or not Thursdays should be exclusively SCSC Pub Nights is virtually an issue in itself.

> The SCSC president's report threatened to "withdraw SCSC support (from the Pub) if prices don't decrease"

On September 25, SAC Scarborough Chairman Victor Jose informed SCSC that he had booked the Thursday, December 5 Pub Night for SAC as they had some extra money for entertainment expenses. He had intended to bring in some comedians and possibly a band for the students. Mike responded: "We feel, although not previously discussed with all of council, that SCSC should keep Thursday Pub Nights for SCSC." There was no further discussion on the topic until after a recess in which Bayer and Campbell had a "private discussion" with some of the other council members. After the break the issue was re-opened:

"Mike: BIRT - All Thursdays shall remain SCSC nights. None will be given away to other groups or clubs.

1st Mike 2nd Jen (James)

Discussion:

Victor: I've already given an official letter to Tom Billinger.

Mike: Tom has no right to do that. There is no problem for any other night

Lance: SCSC Cultural Night still O.K.

Jay: What little SAC does, we should keep the night so we can keep the money."

> "Jay: What little SAC does, we should keep the night so we can keep the money."

SCSC had no plans for the night in question at the time.

SCAA fought this issue as they had, by a longstanding convention, had one Pub Night per semester, just like SAC. While SCSC claims to have granted them their pub nights, the Underground could not find mention of such in the minutes of the appropriate meeting which they issued. Frustated, SCAA gathered proxy votes and attended the General Meeting (minutes of this meeting are still unavailable for students). When the issue arose tempers flared on both sides, and a recess was called during which the Speaker, Kim Clarke, explained their options to SCAA. Meanwhile Bayer, Campbell and Tsakos engaged in a private consultation just outside the Council Room. SCAA refused to table the issue and, with the benefit of their proxy votes, successfully re-established their Pub Nights officially. This will stand, explained SCSC, though next year's council may decide to change that.

In the following meeting Social Commisioner Sue Czerlau presented a policy which she felt should be followed by SCAA for their Pub Nights. The Underground could not obtain a copy as the policy was not passed in council; SCSC felt they would talk to SCAA instead. However, a brief summarization of the contents of the policy is as follows:

- SCAA will incur any cost of advertising for the particular Pub Night
- SCAA will share equally in any profit or loss with the Pub which results that night as per the standing agreement SCSC has with the Pub
- the event will be advertised either as a SCAA/SCSC joint event or a SCSC/SCAA joint event
- SCSC will have the privilege of putting at least 15 names on the guest list for the night in question.

Whether or not SCAA agrees to these conditions remains to be seen.

The guest list has been a recurring issue this year. We published a letter to the editor in our November 19 issue from S.T. Wong which represented a feeling common among students: "(I) have observed many "friends" of the council breezing past the long line-ups because their names appear on a list. Who creates these elitist compilations?" In the following issue Czerlau responded: "It is normal to also have a guest list for those people who help make the event possible....The names that appear on the SCSC guest list are members of the commisions, in particular the Social Commision. A motion was passed at a SCSC Board Meeting in October that only those people aforementioned would appear on the guest list."

If, however, the guest list is only for those who helped out with a particular event, why stipulate SCSC control over it for the SCAA Pub Nights? Excerpts of the minutes of the meeting that Czerlau referred to follow:

"Mike: 1. SCSC used to own the pub (admin. gave us permission to get in free w/o waiting in line).

2. SCSC earn their $3/wk doing other things. (*NOTE: this refers to SCSC's immunity to Pub Night cover charge, not their salaries and honoraria which amount to substantially more than $3 a week.)

3. Sometimes bad P.R.

4. Bad control with money (7 or 8 people handling the money-not good)

5. Staff would sometimes not show up.

6. I propose we walk through the back door"

Colin: "...if motion passes I'm going to have to say that we can't drink before you work. It will stop us from having fun or drinking. Why can't we enjoy ourselves for one night of the week?"...

> "Mike: ...I propose we walk through the back door.
> Sue: ...suggestion of using the back doors is great."

Sue: "suggestion of using the back doors is great"...

The motion to have "an SCSC member work the door 1/2 hr. in order to get into a pub night or concert free of charge and not have to wait in line" was then voted on. The resolution failed. The meeting closed with "Other Business" in which the issue was put contentedly to rest for SCSC.

"Sue: Go through the back door of the pub

-guest list will go up to the pub on Thursday

- time limit on back door - 10p.m.

Bryan (Beatty): Sue, what about guests?

Sue: O.K. no time limit"

An SCSC representative has pointed out that this policy is no longer in effect as pub manager Tom Billinger refused to allow it.

The frequency and routine with which SCSC considers motions regarding Pub policy indicates that they have significantly more control over the Pub than the strict interpretation of the Board structure would indicate. In an interview with SCSC Campbell explains: "The vote was made on (SCSC) council and that forces us to vote also on the Pub Advisory Board...it forces us to go to the Pub Advisory Board and vote the way the council conveners vote". This means that the SCSC, with three of the six voting positions on the Pub Advisory Board, can manipulate any decision by consistently providing a united front. Nothing can be passed without SCSC consent and SCSC only requires one of the three remaining Administrative votes to pass any motion it wishes. SCSC draws the analogy, "It's like a subcommittee making a suggestion to a parent committee. All the power lies with the Pub Advisory Board." Yet by controlling 50% of the voting members on the Board with the "ultimate power", it is clear that SCSC still plays a very active role in controlling the Attic.

Christmas Wishes...

To my favorite women (you know who you are....I think),

Thanks for putting up with me and for putting me up for that matter. You're my home away from home, my sisters, and you cam abuse and molest me any time you want... just not after a round of Margueritas. (Well, I guess I could make one exception.) Take care, and have a safe and happy holiday (ya, as if I'm not going too see all of you).

The Un-male

Merry Christmas and Good luck in the New Year to the Blazing "Blades".

Steven darling: Although we're having three Christmas celebrations together with numerous presents and cards and we're spending the season together I still figured that if there were'nt a message here for you you'd say - Oh, oh I see. And so Evenstay, Merry Christmas, I love you, other P.D.A.'s, etc. Let's make Nicholaus proud.

Love and Love and Love and Stuff, Katy.

To the Lizard Twins: Remember! He knows where you've been sleeping so be good for gift-giving's sake!!

Enjoy & Merry Christmas!

Sheryl M.

Guess what,
Santa told me
what you are getting for Christmas,
That's what.

Have a nice holiday Hugs and Kisses,

Maria,

How could I not write something to you? Keep this issue forever, as I shall keep our memories. There are somethings you always remember.

The New Year is beginning, I think we have a jump on it.

Jason

When I graduate and move away from here, you're the voice I'll long to hear.

Merry Christmas Tony,
Your friend Chris.

Christmas Wishes...

To my favorite Irishman who can't write poems:

Jim Seamus James - be of good cheer
First term is over and Christmas is near
So here is a wish for your bright Christmas Day
I hope all your presents make you joyous and... happy.

Lotsa Love, Katrina!

Kirk & Claudia,
Just wanted to wish you guys a good Holiday Season.

Merry Christmas all you COOL CSCR DJ friends and all my HIP Underground friends, and all my WILD Rez friends,
and all my CRAZY imagining friends as well,

Dawn,
All I want for Christmas... is the night you keep promising. I expect to collect in the New Year.
Jason.

Dear Sweetheart,

Just a short and simple message to let you know that I am looking forward to the Christmas holiday and spending another happy and exciting year with the most special guy in my life.
Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year!

ILY, "B.D."

To my Soulmate,

In this life and the next,
Nothing can tear us apart —
two halves of a whole.
For all the times I could have told you
And didn't,
I just want you to know
You mean the world to me.
